

OUTSIDERS, CARRYING HEAVY ODDS, HAVE BEEN KNOWN TO WIN EASILY

Bright Skies Was One Who Came Through and Cleared Up for Two Nervy Individuals, One of Whom Dropped Dead From Excitement Afterward; Wishing Ring Another Who Once Won Money.

BY H. B. CADDLE.

DESPISED outsiders, horses entirely overlooked in the estimation of experts, have ever been much in evidence in turf history of America. The longest priced winner on a track where bookmaking had been in vogue was Bright Skies, at Emeryville, Cal., in 1909. The longest priced winner at a track under the mutual system of betting was Wishing Ring, in Kentucky, in 1911. Prior to the winning of these two horses Bronzemarte, at Mammoth Park, N. J., and Nailer, at Brighton Beach, held the record for winning at long odds. The win of Bright Skies at Emeryville was attended by a distinct win for players of hunches, superstition, etc. For some players and others, in fact, it was a case of "the long shot" and, strange to relate, the sun had never shone. The race in which Bright Skies was entered was the last event on the card and was to be called to the post at 4 p. m. About 20 minutes before post time the sun suddenly made its appearance, which caused a prominent newspaper man of San Francisco, who has since been made famous by a celebrated cartoonist, to remark, "at last we have Bright Skies." His attention was immediately called to the fact that an animal by that name was to be a contestant in the last race. He immediately sent a bat into the ring and when the ticket was brought back he was astounded to find it called for $1001, in the event of the horse winning.

Was An Easy Winner. The horse was owned and trained by John Lowe, a well known trainer, and was ridden by an obscure jockey named Murphy. Some players and others evidently played the displaced outsider as at post time his price had been reduced to 500 to 1. When the barrier arose Bright Skies, who had been in the front and much to the astonishment of the spectators and discomfiture of the talent, hung on in a game manner and dashed under the wire an easy winner. One speculator, who was either "crazy" or nervy enough to bet $3 on the horse to win against $1000, dropped dead immediately after the race, while the above mentioned newspaper celebrity immediately became a bore to his friends by impressing upon them the merit of the hunch system.

Wishing Ring's Victory. The win of Wishing Ring, in Kentucky, was a distinct shock to the imagination of the public, this filly, prior to post time, lacked one lone admirer. When the horses paraded to the barrier, four venturesome speculators, who had been looking upon her with admiration to such an extent that they each wagered the price of a $200 ticket on her chances.

Woman Got $1200. Among the successful investors was a woman who wore a wishing ring. She informed her husband, who accompanied her, that she had a hunch the filly would win and bet $2 in the mutuals on her chances. But before the barrier was sprung the woman and her husband were compelled to leave the grounds to catch a train. The horses got off a minute or two later and Wishing Ring won. Before reaching the city from the race track the woman was informed that the filly had won and she and her husband got off the trolley and went back to the race course and presented the ticket to the cashier. The $2 ticket paid nearly $1200. The same amount of money was won by the holders of the other three tickets bet on the filly. Wishing Ring never won a race prior to that day and has never carried the colors of her stable to victory since.

A $200 to 1 Shot. The wins of Nailer and Bronzemarte were accompanied by several peculiar incidents. Bronzemarte was owned by "Father Bill" Daly, and ridden by Willie Palmer. The Daily string at that time was noted for winning at large prices, but, despite this fact, their candidate in that particular race received no consideration from the public and went to the post at 250 to 1, winning in a furious drive in the final running of the race. Nailer, at Brighton Beach, under the mutual system, practically unknown and ridden by an unheard-of rider, galloped to his field, paying $1000 for a $5 ticket.

Five Passenger Comfort

Demand for the new Hup exceeds anything we ever saw, because people nowadays want lots of room in their cars and because the new Hup gives it to them.

Five passengers ride with comfortable ease in the new model. There's plenty of room to stretch, in either front or rear seat, even if the passengers are extra tall.

Really, I don't see how any man or woman could possibly be cramped in this beautiful new car.

Another thing: the cushions are deep and soft—best upholstery we've ever had, and worthy of a car costing a good deal more.

With high seat backs, well tufted, and high protecting sides, you sit at perfect ease.

The new springs—longer in front and semi-elliptic at the rear—cradle car and passengers over the bumps in the smoothest fashion possible.

This new Hup fairly bristles with good points, but to our minds its exceptional comfort overshadows the others by considerable.

Won't you test it for yourself?

VALENTINE MAKES PERFECT SCORE IN MOTORCYCLE RUN

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 1.—Finishing with a perfect score of 1000 points, Maurice Valentine won the Phoenix Motorcycle club's annual reliability contest. Valentine covered 172 miles of Salt river valley roads, ranging from paved streets to cow trails, without any trouble. He checked into the Phoenix, Chandler, Mesa, Tempe, Scottsdale and Glendale controls exactly on the second. Several other individual riders covered the course with a score of 999. R. J. Orput and H. W. Worcester won the team cup with a combined score of 1997. Seventeen riders took part in the run.

COLLEGES MAR RECORDS BY USING SCRUBS AGAINST WEAKER SCHOOLS

Harvard, Yale and Princeton Narrowly Missed Being Beaten During Past Season by Playing Second Teams Against Smaller Institutions; New Game Makes Teams Nearly Equal.

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Those large colleges that do not wish to wear blots on their escutcheons for posterity to gaze upon must discontinue the practice of putting a substitute team into the field when they meet so-called "smaller colleges." Harvard will go down in the 1914 records as being held to a 6-0 tie by the very poor Brown eleven of this season. It's true that the team that was held to the tie was the second Harvard eleven—not the first eleven. But there will be nothing in the records to show that it was the second eleven that played in that game. The records will show—Harvard 0; Brown 0—and nothing more.

Yale shoved a team made up of half regulars and half substitutes against Brown and Brown came mightily close to beating Yale. Princeton, unbeaten and untied up to that time, withdrew most of its regulars in the Williams game, and Williams played Princeton to a 7-7 tie.

It may be a good stunt for the big colleges to save their star men by keeping them out of the game against the "little colleges" but it's a mighty dangerous one. There's no telling just what will happen in football. The "little colleges" demonstrated this season that they are just about as good as the big colleges, and the big colleges that wish to keep their records unmarred by defeat or tie, who send their best team into action every Saturday, whether the game is against the small eleven or a big eleven.

The western footballers are among those who are included in the list of the 1914 upsets.

Last year out of three intercollegiate starts, Michigan beat Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Cornell. Out of two starts, Notre Dame beat the Army and Pennsylvania State. But it was different this year. Notre Dame tackled Yale and the Army—and Notre Dame was beaten to a pulp on both occasions. Michigan battled Harvard, Syracuse, Cornell and Pennsylvania. And only once—when pitted against the joke Pennsylvania team—did the Michigans emerge unbeaten. In other words, Michigan played the east five times last year and five times did the west win. This year the west played the east six times and only once did the west come out on top. There is something of a difference. There's tricks in every trade—even in that of footballing, as the following will show.

One of the guards of the Stevens eleven, which was playing against New York University, was ruled out of the game on account of roughness. That was in the second period. At the beginning of the third period a man was sent from the Stevens sideline to replace the guard who had replaced the one who was chased from the game on account of slugging.

The substitute's face was covered with tape. He limped as he ran. All in all he was a pitiful looking sight as he made for his place in the Stevens line, but a wonderful change came as soon as he got into line. He played like a man who had never known a
